

Should you buy solar panels from China?

Now it may seem easy to think shouldn't I let my energy supplier know if I have solar panels? But China is currently the leader in solar development, and if you look at any top 10 supplier you might be able to find China's involvement, with a few exceptions. It is important to communicate with your energy supplier about having solar panels.

What solar panels are available in China?

This is because of the high efficiency of monocrystalline cells combined with PERC technology. Panels of up to 540 Wp DC power are available from most of the Tier 1 Chinese solar panel manufacturers. Polycrystalline solar panels are typically available in the range from 320 to 370 Wp.

Are Chinese solar panels approved of?

In early January (2014) those fun guys in the Chinese Government released a list of Chinese solar panel manufacturers that they approved of. What does 'approved of' mean? Well, the Chinese polities assure us that they've had an "expert review" of over 500 companies and assessed them on "solar panel manufacturing norms and conditions" such as:

Are Chinese solar panels good?

At the other end of the scale, you have some first class solar panels coming out of gleaming factories in China with world class quality control in operation, and environmental standards as good as any western plant. I've heard Renesola and Yingli, among others, have very impressive Chinese factories. Their panels are certainly excellent.

Why are solar panels manufactured in China?

Solar panels in China are manufactured using Chinese electricity, which is associated with high emissions of CO₂, according to Robbie Andrew, a senior researcher at the Center for International Climate Research in Oslo, Norway, who spoke to FOX Business.
